“ *She is gone....
Twenty days passed...
My brain still pondering...*

*She is gone...
I searched the past...
Still wondering...*

*Why, Lord?
Why Casaundra?
Do I doubt – His Way is perfect?
For she is free.*

*Sean, take courage
And continue this journey of life
Until the reunion...*

“ I had the pleasure of working with Casaundra for only a little while. In that short time, my fondness for her as a person grew to that of a longtime friend, my respect for her as a professional grew to that of a veteran of many shared projects, and I find that I miss her. That's just the kind of person she was.

“ Casaundra and I have been working together for over 20 years in Dow Corning ... the time we spent in Customer Service allowed me to appreciate her as a colleague but also build a friendship that grew across time and distance we lived far from each other but really enjoyed all the opportunities we had to meet each other for projects or meetings, working together but also spending free time together. She was beautiful, and elegant, and sooooo joyful. I followed her battle and was sure she would have made it, but destiny is around the corner. I am sure we will meet again, sometime somewhere...until then she will stay in my memory forever young and forever smiling.

“ Casaundra was a very special woman. I put her in the category of "earth angel". So sweet, graceful and generous; always ready to share her talents and skills with others and always offering words of encouragement and support when needed. We grieve that she will no longer be here with us but are grateful to have known her kind, gentle spirit. Sean, my deepest sympathy to you and your family.

Casaundra simply lit up any room she entered. She was full of joy and brought that joy to everyone she met. “ Casauandra interviewed me when I was just out of college. 20 years later I look back on my career and many of my years were spent on projects with Casaundra... but it was not all about work and projects for her. She also set the example for giving back. Whether it was volunteering for Go Red for Women or being active in ensuring diversity in our workforce, she was just an awesome human being and someone I looked up to as an example of how I want to show up in life... smart, strong, funny and giving.

She will forever have a place in my heart.
